

Re-elect John Carter to Congress

He's fighting for what is most important to us.

Congressman John Carter worked hard to make our families safer, keep taxes low, expand domestic oil production and he protected our Second Amendment rights and traditional marriage.

John Carter has earned re-election and it's important that we keep him working for us in Congress.

Safer families

John Carter's tough stance on crime as a Williamson County District Judge led to the county having one of the lowest crime rates in America.

In Congress, Carter authored a law that made it a crime to steal someone's identity online, and he wrote legislation to fully fund the program that allows local law enforcement to arrest and detain criminal illegal immigrants. Congressman John Carter also helped keep our nation safe by authoring a bill that would expand the current death penalty to include terrorists who kill.

Defending the Second Amendment and marriage

John Carter has a solid record of standing up to the special interests in Washington who want to take away our Second Amendment rights. That's why Carter was given an "A+" grade by the NRA.

John Carter is a social conservative who voted twice to constitutionally define marriage as between one man and one woman.

Cheaper energy prices

Congressman John Carter supports a balanced energy plan that includes expanding domestic production of oil and natural gas and developing alternative energy sources like wind, solar, nuclear, and hydro.

Congressman Carter supports changing the law to end frivolous lawsuits filed by environmental groups against new energy exploration and has voted to construct numerous new oil refineries here in America.

Fighting for Central Texas

One of John Carter's top priorities has been making sure Texas receives its fair share of tax dollars back from Washington to rebuild our roads and transportation infrastructure. He has fought for over $2 million in federal funds to repair and expand roads and highways in our communities.
